Dear Families,

The overarching goal of summer reading is to read for enjoyment and continue reading every day, as much as you can, wherever you choose!

Students have developed productive reading habits throughout the school year. Students were expected to read at least 30 minutes per day at home, and we would like this routine to continue throughout the summer months.

We've put together some resources to help you support your child's (children's) summer reading routines. Below you will find links to grade level books lists and logs, which help with book ideas and outline what teachers expect students to bring with them to class in September.

Google Classroom summer reading stream

We have also developed a way to share and celebrate summer reading through Google Classroom. Students have been provided a code to join a classroom where they can share books they have read with classmates and teachers. This is a way to motivate and celebrate summer reading. Students can recommend a title or search the different genres for their next book.

Incoming Grade 7: qv7v98
Incoming Grade 8: imqgw5

A word about writing

Your students have also been writing all year long and we encourage all students to continue writing over the summer. While there is no requirement, summer is a great time for students to continue writing in their writer's notebooks, write postcards, letters, or even do a photo essay of a trip. Just like summer reading should be for enjoyment, the same goes for writing!
